

September activities

Reigate and Redhill U3A members returned from their holidays raring to have a go at learning together.

Over the past few weeks some attended a National U3A Jazz day in London run by Alan Barnes and his Octet, others visited Kensington Palace on an organised trip and some attended a Study Day run by the Surrey Network of U3As on major infrastructure projects such as Crossrail, the high-speed train link and the Channel Tunnel.

The Group organiser has been inundated with requests to join new and established interest groups such as Bridge for Beginners, French Improvement and Family History.

An evening devoted to The Golden Years of Hollywood took place at the Reigate Manor Hotel featuring a Singing for Pleasure group and around 80 members enjoyed their lively singing and learnt many little-known facts about what went on behind the 'screens'.

If you would like to learn more about U3A, please visit the website to see what is on offer. For anyone who joins from October, membership covers the whole of 2019.
